AMERICANS IN DANGER

Burning and Killing Still Rage in Tarsus.

Appeal for Help Cabled by Rev. William Chambers, a Missionary at Adana—State Department Has Been Notified—Washington Woman Is Also in Peril—Turkey's Critical Hour Is Now at Hand.

Constantinople, April 18.—Late to-night it is reported that more than a thousand persons have been massacred at Alexandretta and Tarsus. The burning and killing are still going on.

London, April 19.—The Constantinople correspondent of the Daily Mail declares that Turkey's committee of union and progress intends first to retake Constantinople, and then institute a military dictatorship; until the country is entirely tranquil, taking measures to safeguard Pera and the Europeans in the capital. Full precautions will be taken to prevent reprisals by the palace. Stambul will be swept clear of its fanatical element at any price.

The correspondent asserts that the terror-stricken troops at Constantinople will not resist the advancing Young Turk troops. It is reported that already several barracks are deserted, not even the sentries remaining.

American Appeals for Help.
Boston, April 18.—A brief cable dispatch received here to-day from Rev. William Chambers, the American board missionary at Adana, Turkey, confirmed the worst fears of the officers of the board in this city. The message was an appeal for help. It was dated at Adana, and read: "Help, Adana, Chambers."

Immediately upon receipt of this message a dispatch was sent to the State Department at Washington, quoting Dr. Chambers' message, and asking that proper action be taken through the regular channels.

Dr. Barton said to-night that there were thirty missionaries connected with the Central Turkey missions, being distributed at various stations in that section. He thought that fully half of this number would have been in Adana to attend the conference.

Washington Woman in Peril.
It is thought likely that the following included the delegates to the convention: Miss Alice C. Brewer, of Washington, D. C., a niece of Chief Justice Brewer of the United States Supreme Court; Miss Isabelle M. Blake, of Vermont; Cora O. O. of Michigan; Mrs. Margaret R. Troubridge, of Brooklyn; Miss Ellen M. Blakeley, of Winchester, Mass.; Miss Kate E. Ainslee, of Ohio; Dr. Thomas B. Christie and wife, of Hartford, Conn.; William N. Chambers, of Canada; Fred E. Goodsell and wife; Lulu K. E. Goodsell, of San Francisco; Dr. Frederick W. McCullum, of Toronto; and Miss Clara L. Peck, of Chicago.

YOUNG TURKS MUSTERING
A GREAT MILITARY FORCE

Constantinople, April 18.—Turkey's critical hour is at hand, but the indications are that it will pass without bloodshed. It does not follow that last Tuesday's work will stand. It may, indeed, be reversed in a few hours, and in much the same fashion as the revolution of July last was accomplished.

The Young Turks are mustering a far greater military force than the conservative forces of a week ago deemed possible. They have established headquarters eighteen miles from the capital, and they send peremptory demands for the prompt restoration of the government which was overthrown last week. This time they make no concealment of their determination to depose the Sultan, whom they persist in connecting with the revolt.

The principal body of the constitutional forces is assembling at Spartakul, where 8,000 troops from Saloniki, Adrianople, Monastir, and other places have already arrived. The deputation of members of the chamber, who went to Constantinople with them yesterday, give conflicting accounts of their negotiations.

Watchword Is Religion.

The watchword of the forces which are assembling is "our religion and the constitution." Their present demands are the punishment of those responsible for the recent revolt, the restoration of the cabinet under Hilmi Pasha, and absolute freedom of discussion in the chamber. The leaders of the advancing troops asked the deputation of deputies if they enjoyed full liberty of speech in parliament. Seventeen replied in the affirmative.

HUNT FOR "BLIND TIGER."

Mobile, Ala., Citizens Will Rout
Them from Their Lair.

Mobile, April 18.—News here is to the effect that Editor W. E. Berry, of the Phenix-Guard (Ala.) Journal, has called a mass meeting of the citizens of his community for Monday morning, to take action regarding the alleged "blind tigers" of Girard. The sightless animals, twenty-three in number, according to the editor, are to be given until noon Monday to retreat from their lairs, and if they do not, they are to be moved out, locked, stock, and barrel, according to the present programme.

It is reported in Columbus that in case the blind tigers do not move out of Girard, the governor will be petitioned to declare martial law there, and take charge of the situation.

GRAVE BECKONING, SHE DIES.

Woman of Eighty Years, Lured by Cemetery, a Suicide.

Pittsburg, April 18.—After living eighty years, Mrs. Elizabeth Hummel, of 4026 Pennsylvania avenue, last night committed suicide by taking carbolic acid.

It is thought the cause was the aged woman's belief that a cemetery on which her back window overlooked and a tombstone stood on which her front window faced were both "beckoning to her and hinting," as she put it.

COLLEGE "TRUST" ALLEGED.

Bishop Candler Scores Rockefeller's
General Education Board.

Atlanta, Ga., April 18.—Charging that it is an ally of Rockefeller's general education board, which, he alleges, is seeking to control the schools and colleges of the United States, Bishop Warren Candler, of the Southern Methodist Church, to-day denounced "The conference for education in the South," which has just concluded its twelfth session here. Bishop Candler said:

"Let us not imagine that the 'general education board' will stop with controlling the colleges through its allied body, 'The Southern Education Board.' It seeks to influence public opinion, and direct legislation concerning the common schools."

"After Federal aid to education is secured, we may expect to see started a movement to make the national commissioner of education a cabinet officer."

WEE BRIDE OF CIRCUS GIANT.

He Is Seven Feet and a Half; She Is Less Than Five Feet.

Pottstown, Pa., April 18.—A courtship begun by letters and exchange of photographs, following the advertising for a wife by the man, culminated to-night in the marriage of Oscar Krause, 7 feet 6 inches in height, known as the Kansas Giant, to Miss Annie Bradford, of Springfield, Mo., who is 4 feet 10 inches in height.

The ceremony took place in the opera house here in the presence of 1,000 people, and was performed by Squire William Edelman. The bride's family occupied front seats, and gave their blessing to the union. Miss Katie Bradford was bridesmaid, and William Bradford, flower girl, and William Bradford, best man. Krause is forty-one, and his bride twenty-seven years old. For years he has been traveling with circuses, but he will now settle down on his farm near Ottawa, Kans. He is strong, and says he can do the work of two men on the farm.

Son Locates Mother's Body by Following Loving Directions.

Allentown, April 18.—Guided by a fortune teller, Robert Renner has found the body of his suicide mother in the Little Lehigh River. Mrs. Renner, who was thirty-seven years old, last summer met with a burning accident. The after effects unbalanced her mind. Every evening her clothing was secreted by her nurse, lest she escape by night. On Wednesday night she was gone, having donned her son's clothes. At daylight the cap was found on the river bank. After the stream had been grappled three days in vain, the boy consulted a seer. He told him his mother's body was under one of three logs. He went out in a boat. As he grappled under the third bridge mentioned a dark object arose. He reached into the water, grabbing his dead mother.

DR. TROOP QUILTS
EPISCOPAL CHURCHResigns to Adopt the Unitarian Faith.

OPPOSED TO ORTHODOXY

Action of Assistant Rector of St. John's a Surprise.

Every Effort Made to Suppress News of Departure of Son of Leading Canadian Clergyman from Episcopal Faith—Mr. Troop Declares His Action
Was Impelled by His Religious Beliefs—Will Be Unfrocked.

Surprise and consternation spread among the Episcopal clergymen of Washington last week, when it was whispered about that one of their number was on the point of leaving the church to adopt the faith of another denomination.

Every effort was made to suppress all information on the subject, but a careful canvass of the different churches disclosed that Rev. G. W. H. Troop, curate of St. John's Episcopal Church, in Georgetown, acting rector of Trinity Chapel at Arlington, and son of Rev. G. Osborne Troop, rector of St. Martin's Church, Montreal, one of the foremost orthodox Episcopal churchmen of Canada, handed in his resignation last Monday to Bishop Harding.

He has been accepted by the fellowship committee of the National Conference of Unitarian and other Christian churches.

Adopts Unitarianism.

Mr. Troop's action was a complete surprise to his rector, Rev. Frederick R. Howden, of St. John's Church. On Sunday before last he took part in five services, including a sermon at Trinity Chapel, Arlington. The next morning he walked into Mr. Howden's office, informed him that he felt he could no longer conscientiously retain his charge as clergyman of the Episcopal Church, and presented his resignation as curate of St. John's. In explanation he stated that he had finally become converted to the teachings of the Unitarian faith. As soon as he recovered his surprise, Mr. Howden communicated with Bishop Harding, and it was agreed, under the circumstances, to at once accept the resignation.

Mr. Troop has not yet presented his formal resignation from the Episcopal Church to Bishop Harding, but will do so within the next few days. He has already made several ineffectual attempts to see the Bishop. His deposition from the office of clergyman of the Episcopal Church will follow as a matter of course from his action in entering into negotiations with the Unitarian Church.

Will Be Unfrocked.

In the eyes of orthodox Episcopalians, the unfrocking of a clergyman of their faith is an ordeal something akin to excommunication from the Roman Catholic Church. The only palliative in Mr. Troop's case is that the records will show that he was deposed "for reasons not affecting his moral character." In the past twelve years in which the Episcopal diocese of Washington has been in existence, only three clergymen have been deposed by the bishop.

Bishop Harding refused to discuss the matter yesterday. Upon the first visit to his home yesterday a Chinese funky informed a reporter from The Washington Herald that the bishop was not at home. Later, a member of the bishop's family said the bishop "worked very hard to-day and cannot possibly be disturbed."

Speaking of the occurrence in the Georgetown church, she said it "was a matter the bishop naturally would not discuss with the members of his church." Mr. Howden, rector of the church from which Mr. Troop resigned, discussed the subject frankly. He said that the resignation was a complete surprise to him, as he had never received the slightest intimation that his assistant contemplated such a step. Upon the first visit to his home yesterday a Chinese funky informed a reporter from The Washington Herald that the bishop was not at home. Later, a member of the bishop's family said the bishop "worked very hard to-day and cannot possibly be disturbed."

Mr. Troop States Position.

Mr. Troop, who lives at 3233 O street northwest, said yesterday:

"I have absolutely nothing to conceal in the matter, and see no reason why I should not state my position frankly. I have been accepted by the fellowship committee of the National Conference of Unitarian and other Christian Churches in the usual manner, on probation for six months. If at the end of that time they still consider me a suitable candidate I may receive a charge in the church."

"My resignation from St. John's, of course, took effect at once. I will see the bishop in a short time and present my resignation from the Episcopal Church."

"Any one in sympathy with the broad church party in the Episcopal and other churches can easily realize how, by imperfect degrees, one can pass out of orthodoxy into Unitarianism. Ever since I have been in the ministry I have belonged to the extreme radical wing of the broad church party, and gradually I have come to feel that I would be more at home in the Unitarian Church."

Doctrines Need Reinterpretation.
The great principle of the broad church party is that the present age requires a reinterpretation of old doctrines. I have come to feel that this is an extremely difficult task and, perhaps, one that can never be fully accomplished. I have, therefore, come to the conclusion that, in the words of Christ, 'The new wine needs to be put in new bottles.'"

"I have profound respect," he continued, "for the work of the broad church party and am far from thinking that they are not engaged in a noble work. I feel, however, that I would have the greater freedom in a church where I

INDIAN NAILED TO THE CROSS

Aztec Descendant Dies After Excess of Religious Zeal.Mexican Authorities Interfere in "Passion Play," but Native Player
Expires in Agony.

Mexico City, April 18.—The authorities here have been notified of the death of Tiburcio Zambrano, a Tuxpan Indian, under most peculiar circumstances. Zambrano impersonated Christ in the "Passion Play" given by the Indians during holy week at the town of Tuxpan, in the southern part of this state.

When the time for the crucifixion came, on Good Friday, he demanded that he be nailed to the cross instead of lashed, as has been the custom. Religious enthusiasm was at its height, and those in charge of the exhibition acceded to Zambrano's demands, planning him to the cross with nails, hastily secured. Almost immediately, however, the municipal authorities heard of the matter and, although serious trouble threatened for a while, they finally succeeded in dispersing the Indians and releasing the impersonator of the Saviour.

When Zambrano was removed from the cross it was discovered that the nails used in fastening his hands and feet were rusty. Lockjaw quickly developed, and he died in terrible agony.

The Tuxpan Indians are said to be the last of the Aztecs. The "Passion Play" has been a feature of their observance of holy week for many years.

ROBBERS LOOT TOWNS.

Posse Now Pursuing Gang Headed for West Virginia.

Washington, Pa., April 18.—Pursued by a posse of State police and county officers, a gang supposed to contain six robbers is endeavoring to get out of the State into West Virginia. All the towns in southwestern Washington County were looted Friday night, thousands of dollars' worth of booty being secured. S. S. Sidle, who was tied up when he discovered the men in his house, says there were six in the band.

The State constabulary were summoned at daylight, and aided by local and county officers, took up the trail of the thieves, who were mounted on horses taken from the farmers near Bentleyville. A cordon of officers has been thrown along the State line, and it is believed the band is cornered.

SOCIETY ARTIST ARRESTED.

Henry Weidenbach Accused of Robbing
C. P. Taft and Others.

Cincinnati, April 18.—Cincinnati patrons of art were stirred to-day when it became known that Henry Weidenbach, an artist and restorer of paintings, whose reputation is international, is under arrest in St. Louis charged with robbing the homes of patrons in this city of thousands of dollars' worth of jewels, tapestries, and art objects.

Among the Cincinnati art connoisseurs whom he is alleged to have robbed are Charles P. Taft, Gen. Lewis Seasongood, Harry Levy, and G. R. Fries. When arrested late last night in St. Louis he showed no concern over the matter, and said he is willing to return to Cincinnati without requisition papers. He denies that he is guilty of any thefts.

ATTENTION, D. A. R.

Every issue of The Washington Herald this week will be of absorbing interest to the delegates and the thousands of other members and their friends. Arrangements can be made to have the complete set sent to any address for the week.

This will include to-day's paper, and every issue to the adjournment of the congress. These issues will make a complete history of the occasion.

CARDINALS ATTEND RITES

Beatification of Joan of Arc Takes Place in Rome.

Rome, April 18.—The ceremony of the beatification of Joan of Arc took place this morning. It was conducted by Cardinals Rampolla and Marinielli, and other cardinals attached to the Congregation of Rites, assisted. St. Peter's was richly decorated and brilliantly illuminated.

A dense crowd was present, including pilgrims, worshippers, and a number of onlookers, attracted by the rare ceremony, with its gorgeous and elaborate ritual, including exposure of relics of the beatified.

The Pope, who did not attend the ceremony, descended to St. Peter's in the afternoon to venerate the relics, where again there was an immense assemblage. The government had posted 2,000 troops in the square of St. Peter's, to prevent hostile demonstrations.

HELPLESS, THROG
SEES DEATH FIGHTBoy Drowned in Swift Current at Tidal Basin.

TWO ARE SAVED BY NEGROES

Effort of Twin Brothers and Companion to Row Through Flood Gates Results in Overturning of Boat—Elmer Lacey Sinks from View as Rescuers Draw Near.

Struggling manfully against a strong current flowing through the flood gates of the Tidal Basin, Elmer Lacey, thirteen years old, was drowned yesterday afternoon, after being thrown into the water from a capsized rowboat while a hundred persons watched helplessly from nearby craft and the shore.

While the boy was sinking, his twin brother, Homer Lacey, and Dewey Neil, ten years old, were being pulled from the water into a rowboat.

Badly frightened, and wet from their plunge, the boys tried to assist their rescuers in the search for Elmer. Standing in the boat, they directed the efforts of two negroes who had pulled them from the water.

But the rescued lads, the rescuers, and the throngs which watched the search seemed the surface of the water in vain. Elmer Lacey did not reappear, and his body now lies at the bottom of the harbor, probably carried by the current a long distance from the spot where he lost his life.

Tragedy in Sight of Bridge.

The tragedy occurred about 2 o'clock, while the boys were rowing against the current which runs through the flood gates from the Tidal Basin into the harbor. The Lacey boys each pulled an oar, while young Neil reclined on a seat in the stern, gazing at the procession of fashionable equipages and handsomely clothed men and women passing over the bridge above.

Elmer and Homer Lacey found the current strong, but for nearly ten minutes they labored in an effort to pass through the flood gates. Elmer became exhausted, and suddenly ceased rowing, while his brother continued to pull. Instantly, the current swung the boat sideways.

"Pull, Elmer, pull quickly!" cried the Neil lad in terror, but his warning came too late. In an instant the boat was overturned, and the boys thrown into the water. They disappeared together, while cries of warning came from all sides. Men in rowboats saw the accident and started for the spot where the lads disappeared.

Suddenly a man on the bridge cried: "There they are!" and pointed a finger to a spot thirty yards from the capsized rowboat, where three small heads dotted the water. The boys cried for help as they reached the surface, and it was seen by their frantic efforts that they could not swim.

This knowledge lent more energy to the men who were trying to reach the lads, but the current played with the small heads. The water was carrying the boys swiftly out of reach, but they managed to keep afloat by struggling.

Two negroes were in a boat a hundred yards or more from where the rowboat capsized. The current was carrying the boys in the direction of the craft occupied by the negroes, and it was seen the lads would be saved if they could remain afloat until the current carried them the short distance to the boat.

Rescued by Negroes.

The negroes had seen the accident and were rowing hard toward the boys, but the current impeded their efforts. Crying for help and struggling for their lives, the boys showed signs of exhaustion, and it was apparent that they could not continue the fight much longer. Then a cry went up as Elmer Lacey sank from sight. Both Dewey Neil and Homer Lacey saw the expression of terror on

D. A. R. CONGRESS
WILL OPEN TO-DAYMrs. McLean to Call Conven-

RIVAL LEADERS MEET

Mrs. Story and Mrs. Scott, Introduced, Are Cordial.

Effort May Be Made to Prevent Presentation of Portrait of Mrs. McLean to Continental Hall—Real Center of Interest in Fight for the Presidency Generalship—One Thousand Delegates and Regents.

Facing what is termed the most bitter factional contest in the history of the society, more than 1,000 regents and delegates will meet this morning for the opening session of the Eighteenth Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Promptly at 11 o'clock, Mrs. Donald McLean will call the convention to order in Continental Hall, and amid a brilliant ceremony the descendants of American patriots will formally enact a new scene worthy of commemoration in the nation's annals.

The real interest which centers in the convention will be set aside for the moment, and the daughters will pass the day's session in greetings to the officers and distinguished visitors.

The Vice President of the United States, Ambassador J. Jusserand, of France; Bishop Alfred Harding, Rev. Dr. Edward Everett Hale, Rev. Dr. J. Nevett Stelle, of New York; Rev. Roland Cotton Smith, Judge Henry Stockbridge, president general of the Sons of the American Revolution, and other celebrated persons will address the Congress.

Children's Congress at 10.

As a preliminary to the main congress the convention of the Children of the American Revolution will meet at 10 o'clock at the First Congregational Church.

Every hotel in Washington served as a rendezvous for the visitors last night, and every feature of the coming fight was rehearsed by the anxious delegates. While it is conceded the convention will surpass all previous gatherings in warmth of debate and political maneuvering, the election, together with the campaign that has been in progress for the last few weeks, is regarded as the most singular contest during the nineteen years of the organization's existence.

As an aftermath of the Vice President and Mrs. Sherman's reception, the hundreds of delegates who packed the corridors of the New Willard were treated to a novel surprise last evening when Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Story, the opposing candidates, were introduced and exchanged greetings.

Noticing that both nominees were standing near each other in the promenade, Mrs. William Harvey Weed, of Connecticut, asked Mrs. Scott if she would like to meet her opponent. The administration leader expressed her pleasure and advanced toward Mrs. Story with outstretched hand.

Action Creates Surprise.

The conservative candidate was profuse in her solicitude for the Illinois member, and expressed her thankfulness that she had not been injured in a collision with her carriage during the afternoon. While the two candidates refrained from discussing politics, their action was regarded on all sides as singular, in view of Mrs. Scott's declaration to attend the Sherman reception Saturday.

In view of the fact that administrationists and conservatives have manifested a spirit of friendliness not in keeping with the stirring campaign that is going on, this meeting has added another aspect to the already complex situation.

Optimistic reports still continue to emanate from the respective headquarters, and the managers for the two tickets were kept busy rounding their contingents into shape. Most of the State delegations have arrived, and with few exceptions, all have named the ticket they will support.

Although several hundred of the delegates attended church services at St. John's yesterday, and many more visited Continental Hall, the majority of the "Daughters" again sought out the main corridor of the Willard and took up the thread of the campaign interrupted Saturday night.

Crowd Hotel Corridors.

It was with difficulty that one passed through the thoroughfare, and closely were the conversant daughters grouped together. Animated discussion was enhanced by the presence in the lobby of Mrs. Story and Mrs. Scott, who were escorted about by their adherents.

Congratulations were showered upon the aspirants for the highest office and predictions as to the outcome of the election on Thursday flew thick and fast.

One manager declared that the Eastern States would be joined in their fight to elect Mrs. Story by the Southern delegations. The Western States are expected to flock to the banner of Mrs. Scott, although this element looks to certain Eastern daughters for support.

Aside from the consideration of the relative merits of the candidates, a new subject was discussed among conservatives last night with much animation. Some of this faction are inclined to doubt the appropriateness of the proposed presentation of Mrs. McLean's portrait to Continental Hall.

"It is not because of her personal administration that she is objected to the gift, but it is understood the painting represents her holding a miniature Continental Hall in one hand, while the same building is portrayed in the background." It could not be learned last night whether Mrs. Story had been invited to attend the reception to be given to Mrs. Scott this afternoon at the New Willard by the Illinois delegates. Mrs. Story stated sev-
